Preamble

Healthcare systems across the world are facing growing challenges arising from pandemics, climate change, changing demographics, workforce shortages, rising costs and rapid technological advancements. These challenges have reinforced the need to build resilient health systems that can anticipate, adapt and respond effectively while ensuring safe, accessible, affordable and quality healthcare.

Hospitals are at the heart of this transformation. Beyond providing clinical care, they play a vital role in public health preparedness, patient safety, workforce development, technological innovation & community wellbeing. Strengthening hospitals is therefore essential to building sustainable and future ready healthcare systems.

With this vision, AHPI Global Conclave 2027, themed "Building a Resilient Health System: The Central Role of Hospitals," will bring together policymakers, healthcare leaders, clinicians, nursing professionals, hospital administrators, academicians, technology experts and other stakeholders from India and abroad to exchange experiences, share insights and identify practical solutions.

Through six thematic sessions, the Conclave will explore key aspects of healthcare resilience, including hospital leadership, quality and patient safety, artificial intelligence and digital health, financial and operational sustainability, workforce development and preparedness for emerging health challenges. Special emphasis will be placed on strengthening nursing leadership, building public trust & promoting collaborative approaches to healthcare delivery.

Hosted in Guwahati, the gateway to Northeast India, the Conclave will provide a platform for meaningful dialogue, partnerships and collective action, while highlighting the region's healthcare aspirations and opportunities.

Together, we aim to build stronger hospitals, resilient health systems and healthier communities.
